Different people at different stages can and do benefit from personalized coaching. We have the background, skills and ability to work with people on a 1:1 basis to help them make their best contribution in the workplace.

Different people at different times can and do benefit from personalized coaching.

At Newleaf Training and Development we have the background, skills, and ability to work with people on a one-on-one basis to help them make their best contribution in the workplace.

We specialize in helping people manage themselves, lead others and build business financial intelligence. Most of our coaching assignments have been in the areas of communication skills, leadership development, time management, and improving business acumen.

Each person we coach is unique and has their own specific challenge to address in their world of work. Our coaching is, therefore, highly customized to the individual.

We can either conduct the coaching work on-site at the person's place of work or, if privacy is an issue, we can arrange it to be delivered at our offices or some other mutually convenient location.
